“ Lord,

You are faithful in all things. You gave me a wonderful grandmother who protected me, painted my nails, prayed for me, did my hair, laughed with me, fought with me, and loved me like no other grandma.

She was Yours ultimately and first, and I believe what Your Word says in Psalm 39:4, that our lives are fleeting and that our days are numbered here on this earth. You welcomed Grandma home at just the right time and the perfect moment. I know she's healthy and whole, physically, but more importantly, spiritually. She has gazed upon the face of her Creator and the One Who so willingly gave Himself for her. She has fully realized what Your salvation is and the complete meaning of the Gospel message.

She was a Believer in You, and I know she's in heaven with You. The Bible says that to be absent from the body is to be with Christ. I can only imagine what she's doing right now; I'm sure she's talking with anyone and everyone, Grandma never met a stranger. I'm confident she's reuniting with family (her parents and sibling and others), Grandpa, and other friends. I'm sure she's sought out Dad Pierson to see if he's kept himself in shape. :0) She's likely learning things she never knew.

Her leaving us is not an eternal goodbye; because of You, my Savior, I KNOW I will see her again in our eternal heaven, a place where together we'll see colors we've never seen, hear sounds we've never heard, visit places on this earth she only dreamed of visiting, taste foods we've never even heard of. Together we'll explore, and we'll be able to sit and talk for as long as we want. Time and busyness will no longer rob us of each other. Your peace will overflow; Your love will fill us; Your light will be sufficient.

I look forward to seeing Grandma again one day, in Your perfect timing. Until then, I don't know if you do this, but it never hurts to ask, right? Please tell her how much we'll miss her, how sorry I am for the time we didn't get here, how much I have always treasured and loved her, and that I can't wait to hug her and see her again. Thank you, Lord, for the hope I have in You; thanks for making a way for me to see Grandma, and all those I've loved, again. Thanks for giving us a beautiful day to celebrate Grandma's life and home-going. Thanks for the people, the friends, both new and old, and the family you have provided to help ease our sadness and to come alongside to hold us up on this more difficult part of the journey. Thanks for the strength and healing I KNOW you will provide through this loss.

*Sincerely and truly,
Missie*

Myrtle The little time I got to know you was such a special moment in my life that i will always treasure. When I would come to work you would be the 1st person I would check on. You always had such a beautiful smile and would say something that always made me smile. I remember one time I came in your room to say hi and you were laying down and you said come here BABYGIRL and you patted your bed for me to sit down so I did and you put your arm around me and said you can lay with me for a while. Oh Myrtle I wiss seeing you and talking to you. You will always have a specail place in my heart.

“ Lou, Hershel, Missie & family: I'm very sorry for your loss. Even though I've only met Myrtle a few times, she really made an impression! We all loved her sassy sense of humor! Her and I shared a love for sparkly jewelry too. Love, Sally Bennett
